Previous Undergraduate Research Experience

The Astin Civic Engagement Research Program funds a select group of upper-division students who demonstrate a strong, ongoing commitment to civic engagement research. The program includes a "spring training" component in which selected students engage in a one-quarter internship with a community organization and enroll in a 2-unit seminar to create a formal research proposal. A select group of students who are chosen as Scholars will continue their internship for two more quarters, and conduct a comprehensive research project under the guidance of a faculty mentor. Spring training students enroll into Civic Engagement 95CE and Civic Engagement 194A during spring quarter of their junior year; selected Scholars enroll into Civic Engagement 195CE during the fall and winter quarters and enroll into a Civic Engagement 199 course during spring of their senior year.

Community Partner Information

Please provide information on your community partner. NOTE: The community partner must be an off-campus agency or organization within the greater Los Angeles area. Student-run clubs and organizations are not eligible to be community partners. You will need a letter of support from your community partner.

Research Proposal

Please describe your proposed research project if you were chosen to continue as an Astin Scholar. Your proposal should include the following:

- What is your research question?
- How is it a civic engagement project?
- What is the methodology you will use to collect data to answer your question?
- Describe your role with your community partner?
- How will your research project benefit your community partner?
