Community Engagement & Social Change minor

The Community Engagement and Social Change minor is an interdisciplinary program that creates a unique opportunity for students to examine strategies for social change through sustained engagement in Los Angeles and beyond. It complements any major.

AmeriCorps Program

One-year service programs focusing on social justice. -JusticeCorps members assist self-represented litigants who cannot afford to hire an attorney. Apply every spring. -Jumpstart members work in under-resourced preschool classrooms to promote early literacy. Apply every summer/fall.

Community-Engaged Courses

Students enroll in an academic credit-bearing course that connects curriculum with meaningful work in Los Angeles. There are opportunities for direct service and research. Look for the SL suffix in the course catalog. Many community-engaged courses also satisfy GE, writing, diversity education, and other graduation requirements!

Changemaker Scholars

Changemaker Scholars mentor youth civic activists in their pursuit of social change. All students selected receive a scholarship and enroll in a 4-unit upper-division independent study course in winter and spring quarters.

Astin Community Scholars Program

Astin Scholars implement a community engaged research project, receiving both academic credit and a scholarship for their work over three quarters. In partnership with the UCLA Labor Center and the Labor Studies Department, students collaborate with graduate students and community stakeholders on applied research projects to address issues of social inequity.

Academic Internship Courses

195CE Internship courses provide juniors and seniors with an opportunity for career exploration, mentoring, and research. Students work with non-profit agencies, government offices, or in corporate settings.
